Muldor — Miller History

Stephanis Muldor.[1]

The Holland Society Year Book, 1896, gives the origin of the Miller family of Albany, as follows:

"Stephanis Muldor came to this country from Nijmegen in the province of Gelderland, Holland, about 1650, and settled in Albany, New York. The family is said to have fled from France to Holland early in the seventeenth century to escape religious persecution. The name during their residence in Holland was written De Muldor, and since their arrival in this country passed through various changes from Muldor, Mulder, Muller, Mullen, until it finally settled down into Miller. They seem to have brought or accumulated considerable wealth, for in 1719 Cornelius Stephanis Muldor, the son of Stephanis, disposed by a long and carefully drawn will of an estate worth between five and six thousand pounds sterling. This will was made in Albany and was witnessed by Samuel Bruyn, Peter Winne, and Philip Livingston."

Muedor-Miller History

The Rev. F. N. Zabriskie in his book Claverack Centennial gives the following history of the Miller family:[1]

"The Miller family, so numerous in its various branches, trace their origin to a common ancestor, Cornelius Stevense Muedor, who obtained from Hendrick van Rensselaer a continuous lease for about one thousand acres of land. His residence was near the spot now occupied by one of his descendants, Mr. John Miller. It may not be safe to undertake to reserve an established opinion on a matter so delicate as that of a family descent; but it seems to be capable of proof that the original name of Miller was De Muedor, and if so, then it is clearly a Huguenot and not a German designation. Observing, as I often have, the French features of some of the Millers, it raised a question in my mind whether they were not the offspring of those brave defenders of their faith, who, after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, fled into their country rather than bow to the detestable tyranny of Rome. Be this as it may, I shall briefly state that portions of the land originally occupied by Cornelius Stevense Muedor are yet in the possession of several of his direct descendants. He had four sons, of whom Stephanus and Christopher were two. Christopher was father of William and he of Jochim Miller, who was an officer in the regiment already named (the regiment raised in Claverack to resist the northern encroachments of the British troops). He was father of John S. and William Miller, and John S. was father of John, who married Miss Staats, a descendant of one of the old Albany families of that name, and who resided with us.

"Stephanus, son of Cornelius, the founder of the family, received a deed from his father, in 1723, for the farm on which Mr. Herman Miller now resides, but which at that time, extended on the other side of the creek southward. This Stephanus, in 1726, was one of the committee to erect the first house of worship in this place. He had a son, Cornelius Stephanus, who also in turn had a son named

[1] Claverack Centennial; by Rev. F. N. Zabriskie 1867; p. 46.

[1]"Cornelius C. S. Miller. This last named Cornelius had two sons and two daughters. The names of the sons were Stephen and Cornelius; of the daughters, Rachel and Cornelia. Miss Maria Miller still resides on land owned by the first Stephanus, and Stephen Miller Van Wyck also owns land which has descended in the family in unbroken succession. Among the descendants of this branch are Hon. Judge Theodore Miller, Hon. John Bain, Jr., Jacob W. Miller, and the late Henry C. Miller, of Hudson.

"The first Hessian Miller had two sons, Joachim and Cornelius. This Cornelius was father of Jeremiah Miller, grandfather of Jeremiah M. Race, who occupies a portion of the original estates, and of Jeremiah Miller Williams, who married a granddaughter of [illegible] John Hubbard. They occupy the farm owned by John Bain, at Lamed's, and who afterward built, about eighty years ago, the house now occupied by Miss Catharine Phillips."

A History of the Reformed Dutch Church of Claverack.

[1]" There seems a sacred and suggestive hush around and within an old edifice like this, very different from the atmosphere which pervades a new building, however deftly it may imitate the antique architecture and effects. As we stand here today, who is so unimaginative as not to feel this? The vision of a hundred, yes, of a hundred and fifty years passes in panorama before us. The early pastors seem to raise the marble doors of their tombs in yonder cemetery, and look about for the antiquated pulpit from which they preached down upon their people. The throngs of former worshipers in their quaint attire come winding over the hills and valleys in their plain and springless but capacious wagons, to occupy the high, straight backed pews. The women, in summer with their mob-caps and white muslin neckerchiefs modestly folded over their breasts, or, in winter, with their stuffed cloaks and ponderous bonnets, and foot stoves replenished at the parsonage fire; and the men with their suits of homespun, their broad hats and knee-breeches, and ruffled shirts, and buckles on throat and shoes; and the goodly array of children, all baptized and all brought to church, and young and old alike speaking in a foreign tongue which would be utterly unintelligible to nine out of ten of us today.

"And now the tinkling bell has ceased its clatter in the little, old belfry, the neighborly gossip around the doors is over, and the congregation is seated decently and in order, the Elders and Deacons at the right and left of the pulpit, the Van Rensselaer of the day in his elevated and canopied pew among his army of lease-holders. The men are ranged around the walls, and the women in orderly rows in the center. Above their heads is a wooden ceiling with ponderous rafters. The walls are plastered and meant to be white; the wood-work is painted blue; its galleries have yet been "introduced, they tower even further above the people than the present ones; the pews differ in shape and size almost as much as their occupants. Up prior to 1750, the worshippers depend solely upon warm foot-stoves to save them from freezing. As late as 1800, a ten-plated box-stove, which scarcely serves to do more than make the cold more appreciable, stands raised on four legs upon a platform in the very center of the building, with pipe going out of the window. The pulpit stands at the north end, is painted blue, as if to indicate its celestial origin, shaped like a wine-glass, and surmounted by a sounding board on which "Holiness to the Lord" is appropriately inscribed. At the further end of the church is a great window, which would look out into the tower, were it not for the red curtain by which it is covered.

[1] Claverack Centennial; by Rev. F. N. Zabriskie; 1867; p. 11.

"There is as yet no occupant of the pulpit, but underneath sits the voorleser, (we will suppose William Van Ness, who held the office for thirty-three years, or Stephen Fonda, or William Ten Broeck, or, at a still later date, Robert Van Deusen, father of our present beloved Elder of that name.) He begins the service by reading the Scriptures, including the commandments; then he gives out a psalm, and, in old-fashioned though not unpleasing style of simple music, leads the tune for his choir, (who are, as it should be, the whole congregation). All this is in Dutch, of course; and, if the period be not more than sixty or seventy years ago, promotes the amusement quite as much as the edification of the "Young America" of that day, as they sit hidden away in their high-walled pews. During the singing the Dominie enters. We will suppose it to be Dominie Gebhard in his prime. Rather below the medium height, and correspondingly slim, with nimble step he advances up the aisles, bowing to right and left after the old German custom, and pausing a moment at the bottom step of the pulpit to reverently hold his hat before his eyes and offer prayer. As he rises to conduct the"

"service, we catch a sight of his mild and cheerful face and small but bright eye, white cravat and "bands"; and soon, with a clear voice and animated gesticulation, he begins his sound and pious discourse, in the Low Dutch or the German, as the case may be. Though not lengthier for the period, our modern taste would doubtless cut it down to one half its duration.

"Every Sabbath is a baptismal day; and yet, behold the long line of parents and sponsors bringing their children to the Lord! One, two, six, twelve, and next Sabbath shall, perhaps, witness as many more infants sealed to Christ. It was no uncommon thing for the Baptismal Record to be increased by the addition of over one hundred names in the course of a year. An instance is related by Rev. Dr. Currie, where thirty-six children were baptized at one service in the church of Taghkanic by Dominie Gebhard. These, with the parents and godparents, must have made a company of at least one hundred.

"And now the Deacons step forth with their money-bags, extended to long poles, and furnished with little tinkling bells that make a suggestive sound as they pass from pew to pew. Or, it is Communion Sunday. Rank after rank of communicants are summoned from their seats, and in turn surround the table, where the elements are distributed to each by the hand of the Dominie himself. Nor is it necessarily the Sabbath. Christmas, New-Year's day, Good Friday, Easter, and Whitsunday are feast days by appointment and usage. Or, it is catechetical exercise. There are no Sabbath-schools yet. Robert Raikes had not gathered his little vagrant neighbors about him till this building was fourteen years old. The Dominie is all the Sunday-school the children know, as they sit in awestruck lines before him, and lisp in Dutch the long and intricate answers of the Heidelburgh Catechism. He is superintendent, teacher, library, singing-book, and child's paper to them, and I am afraid picnic and Christmas-tree also."

Catrasch Centennial; by Rev. F. N. Zabriskie; p. 11.

¹"Such are some of the scenes which pass before us in solemn and tender recollection, as we sit here to day amid scenes so like and yet so changed. The same blue heaven above us, the same walls about us, the same trees overshadowing us, the same mountains reposing in the distance, the same church with its doctrine and worship, the same families occupying these seats, bearing the same time honored names of Van Rensselaer, Van Deusen, Miller, Esselstyne, Ten Broeck, Delamater, Philip, etc. . . . . .

"But all this time the little church was gaining strength by increase of numbers and wealth, and, we trust, by growth in grace, and in the year 1726 they made a successful effort to erect a church building. The building committee consisted of three familiar names, Samuel Ten Broeck, Cornelise Martense Esselsteen, and Jeremias Muller. And the people made a curious covenant at the time, actually binding themselves to the church for the accomplishment of the undertaking instead of subscribing a specific amount. The building committee were empowered to determine what each one should give in work or money, and they bound themselves to fulfill the agreement under penalty of three pounds current money of the Province of New York. The names of those who made this compact, as they are the first upon the records of the church, are worthy of special mention. They are, besides the building committee, as follows: (the names are given in the exact spelling of the record) * Hendrick Van Rensselaer, Isaack Van Duse, William Esselsteen, Stiffanis Muller, Jaspar is Conyn, Hendrick D. Lamater, Isaack D. Lamater, Honpert V. Duse, Arent Van der Kar, Jacob Esselsteen, Richard Moor, Jacob Eserman, Robbert Van Duse, Joris Decker, Killiaan Muller, Cornelis Muller, Junior, Matthews Is: V. Duse, Isaack Esselsteen, Jasper Van Hoese, Matthews V. Duse, Jan Bont, Isaack V. Aregen, Hendrick Bont, Kristoffel Muller, Tomas Van Duse,

Will of Cornelius Mulder[3] son of Cornelius Stephense Mulder[2].

m. 174– d. 1744.

"In the name of God, Amen, May 28, 1744. I, Cornelius Mulder, of Claverack, in the county of Albany, yeoman, being sick. I leave to my wife Jannetie all of my estate during her widowhood. After her death or marriage all my real estate that was made over to me by my honored father, Cornelius Stevense Mulder, by indenture dated October 4, 1723, shall come into the full management and lawful possession of my nephew, Johannes Tobias Van Deusen, of whom I am Godfather, he rendering and fulfilling all such dues to the Lord Patroon of Rensselaerwyck as are specified in the indenture. I also give him my gun, when he is of age, and two slaves, and a silver cup and spoon. I leave to my brother Christopher Mulder, $50. To my brother Jacob, $15. To Cornelius and Isaac, the sons of my deceased brother Johannes, $5 each. I make my wife and my good and trusty friends, William Van Ness and Jacob Freese, executors.

Witnesses, Samuel Ten Broeck, William Esselsten, Joseph Freese. Proved before Wynant Schuyler, Esq., October 4, 1744.

[1]"In the name of God, Amen. I, Jeremiah Muller, of Claverack, in Albany County. I leave to my eldest son Cornelius my negro man named "Jo", in right of primogeniture and first born, and he is to make no further claims. I direct all debts paid. I leave to my wife, Elizabeth, the use of my old place, where I now live, at Claverack between the lands of Hendrick Ten Broeck and William Hall-stone, with the house, barrack, barn and orchard, and all the personal estate so long as she remains my widow. I leave to my eldest son Cornelius all that part of my estate in Claverack, now in his possession, upon a certain creek or kill, commonly called Cornelis Kill, with the buildings. "Beginning at the kill, on the north side of the same and running southeast towards the south of a small marsh, towards a small bridge that lays in a [illegible], where the wigwam of the Indian Sam-ez stood; then down the Brook, to the end of the Ditch, where there stands an apple tree; then on the said kill or creek, between the old and new reckoning, till you come to the point of the kill, then going up northeast on said kill or creek, on both sides of the same, as far as my right goes, with all improvements. As granted to me by the late Colonel Henry Van Rensselaer, as by Indenture may appear." And he shall pay to my wife Elizabeth $3 12s yearly "without fraud or delay." I leave to my son Jacob all the rest of my land and wood lands, that lie on the said Cornelis Kill to the southwest of the tract I have left to Cornelis, and now in the possession of my son Jacob. And he is to pay to my wife, $2 6s yearly. I leave to my son Johannes the farm he now lives on, as granted to me by Colonel Henry Van Rensselaer, and he shall pay to my wife $2 6s yearly. My old place where I now live, the use of which

5- Poem by Julia Ann (Miller) Baxter.

Reasons for Believing Johannes Muller, son of Isaac + Elizabeth (Kittle) Muller, to be John Frederick Miller, cooper in New York City, who married in 1783, Elizabeth Sherwood.

1- John Frederick Miller who married a Sherwood, had daughter Julia Ann Miller who married Israel H. Baxter of Cow Neck, Long Island, and Israel H. + Julia Ann (Miller) Baxter had son John Frederick Miller Baxter, and daughter Isabella V. Baxter among other children.
[Information from Isabella V. Baxter and a book of letters written by John Frederic Miller Baxter, my grandfather.]

2- John Frederick Miller married Elizabeth Sherwood in 1783.
[New York Record, Vol. 47, p. 150.
New York Marriages by Gideon J. Tucker, p. 263]

3- Julia Ann (Miller) Baxter had an elder brother Edward Miller who took care of her when she was a baby and was an officer in a war.
[1 Information from Isabella V. Baxter daughter of Julia Ann (Miller) Baxter
2 Information from a poem written by Julia Ann (Miller) Baxter the original I have in my possession.]

4- Edward Miller was commissioned Captain in the United States Army in 1793, evidently brother of Julia Ann Miller for he was an officer. [Complete Army Register from 1776-1887 by T. H. S. Hamersley; 1888, p. 48, (122, 144, 169).]

5- If Edward Miller was much older than Julia Ann (Miller) Baxter, (who died before 1850, for she is not mentioned in her husbands will, and had had seven children) the war was evidently the War of 1812 in which Edward Miller was captain when Julia Ann Miller was a girl.
[Poem by Julia Ann (Miller) Baxter.]

6- As Edward Miller was commissioned Captain in 1793 he was evidently at least 21 years of age which would bring his birth date to 1772 or before.

Miller Notes.

7- If Edward Miller was born 1772 or before he was evidently a child of John Frederic Miller by a former marriage.

8- There is in my possession a mineature painted on ivory by Isaac Miller, this Isaac Miller I believe to be brother of Edward Miller, he was also in the War of 1812, I believe it to be the same, the portrait on the mineature is of "Jno Frk Miller", 68 yrs. of age, date 1829 (8 or 9 or 3 is scratched) it was formerly owned by Isabella V. Bayter, who, in my presence pointed to the mineature & said, "This was my grandfather", and that was the only one of a man I know to be in her possession at the time, the name is evidently John F.k. Miller and 1829 exactly no date, he died at the age of 84 years, bringing his birth date to 1745.

9- Isaac was a Muller name only as descendants of Johannes Muller who married Lybitee, daughter of Isaac Holenbeek.

[See references for each generation.]

10- Isabella V. Bayter, daughter of Julia Ann (Miller) Bayter, said Kittle was a family name.

11- Isaac Muller, son of Johannes and Lybtee Holenbeek married Elizabeth Kittle.
[1 First Settlers of Albany by Prof Pierson p. 81,
2 New York Wills, Vol VIII p. 230.]

12- Isabella V. Bayter, daughter of Julia Ann (Miller) Bayter has told me of an Aunt Betsy Miller who married a Captain Thompson a merchant to the West Indies.
[Information from Isabella V. Bayter]

13- An Elizabeth Miller married in 1763 a William Thompson.
[New York Marriages by Gideon J. Tucker, p. 263.]

14- Isaac & Elizabeth (Kittle) Muller had a daughter Elizabeth bp. 1744 who probably died, they had another daughter Elizabeth bp. 1745 who in 1763 would be 15 years of age, many girls of 15 years of age married at that time. [First Settlers of Albany by Prof Pierson p. 81, ~~History of Greene Co. N.Y.~~ by J.B. Beers & Co. p. 172, 173]

15- Johannes Muller, son of Isaac and Elizabeth was baptized in Athens, Greene

County where the Holenbeck family lived, also a son of Jeremiah and Elizabeth (Holenbeck) Miller (uncle of Isaac Muller), and a son of Stephanus Muller (another uncle of Isaac Muller, were baptized in Athens, Greene County, New York.

1- History of Greene County, New York by J. B. Beers & Co; 1884; p. 172, 173, 179.
2- See also references for children of Jeremias Muller & Stephanus Muller in this volume.

Therefore: because Isaac and Elizabeth (Kittle) Muller had daughter Elizabeth b. 1744, and daughter Elizabeth b. 1748, and Isaac and Elizabeth Muller had son Johannes b. 1746 in Athens Greene County, New York where two uncles of Isaac Muller had children baptized; because an Aunt Betsy Miller married a Captain Thompson, merchant to the West Indies; because an Elizabeth Miller given with the marriage of Frederick Miller & Elizabeth Sherwood, married a William Thompson in 1763; because Elizabeth daughter of Isaac & Elizabeth (Kittle) Muller would have been 15 years of age in 1763, and many girls of 15 years of age married at that time; because Isaac son of Johannes Muller married Elizabeth Kittle; because Isa.. V. Baxter, my great Aunt, said Kittle was a family name; because Isaac was a Muller name only among the descendants of Johannes & Lybetie (Holenbeck) Muller & she was daughter of Isaac Holenbeck; because there is in my possession a miniature, a portrait painted by Isaac Miller, who I believe to be brother of Edward Miller & in the war of 1812; because Edward Miller uncle of Isabella V. Baxter & brother of Julia Ann (Miller) Baxter was evidently born 1772 or before for he is commissioned Captain in the army in 1793; because he was evidently 21 years of age in 1793, which would bring the date of birth of his father to 1752 or before, and would make him a child of John Frederick Miller before 1783; because John Frederick Miller married 1783, Elizabeth Sherwood, and had evidently been married before that as Edward Miller was a young man when Julia Ann (Miller) Baxter was a baby; because Isabella V. Baxter sister of my grandfather, John Miller Records.

Frederic Miller Baxter (who was named for his grandfather, John Frederick Miller) said that her mother's mother was a Sherwood; and because the miniature painted by Isaac Miller is of "Jno Fk Miller" and the writing is spotted and worn, it probably stands for John Frederick Miller for it was owned by Isabella V. Baxter and in my presence she pointed to a miniature & said, "This was my grandfather", and that was the only miniature of a man I knew her to have at the time, & the date on it is 1823 or 9 it looks more like a nine than a three, and the age 68 years, & if the date 1829 was the date of death of John Frederick Miller who died when he was 84 years of age, it would bring the date of his birth to 1745, possibly he was baptized the next year in 1746; and because Johannes Miller, son of Isaac + Elizabeth Miller was bp. 1746,

I believe that John Frederick Miller who married Elizabeth Sherwood in 1783, (and had son Edward by a former marriage, who was born 1772 or so, and sister Elizabeth Miller or Aunt Betsy who married a Captain Thompson) was Johannes Miller son of Isaac + Elizabeth (Kittle) Miller, who had daughter Elizabeth, bp. 1748 who in 1763 would be 15 years of age, who was evidently the Elizabeth Miller who married William Thompson in 1763, and I believe both Elizabeth (Miller) Thompson, and John Frederick Miller to be children of Isaac and Elizabeth (Kittle) Miller.

Lena Allen Downing.

Note: Isabella V. Baxter, my grand aunt, also said that Waldron was a family name. And, if I remember correctly, she said Springsteen and Barnes were family names, or names of relatives. My father had relatives by the name of VanDeusen.

Lena Allen Downing.

[2] 1663 - "Ferdinandus Mulder, pltf. v/s Isaack de Forest, deft. Pltf. demands from deft. half a year's wages to the sum of one hundred guilders, saying, that the deft. hired him on six weeks trial and he entered on work the fourth of March until the 19th April following. Deft. says, he told the pltf. to go away before fourteen days, as he had no use of him and accepted him only on a month's trial. Burgomasters and Schepens having heard parties, decree that deft. shall pay pltf. for the time he served him, deducting what he has paid him thereon."

[3] "Ferdinandus Mulder, pltf. v/s Isaack de Forest, deft. Pltf. in[?] stanct. The judgement of the W: Court, which the pltf. obtained against the deft. on the 24th April last, produced by the Court messenger and the notice given thereon being read to the deft., he says the pltf. must deliver him the ac/ he has against him, offering then to pay him, claiming damages for his cost, which the pltf. allowed to deft. away."

History of Albany and Schenectady Counties, N.Y. gives:

1 "Early in 1814, an attempt was made by the British to capture some military stores at Oswego Falls, but without success. On the 3d of July, 1814, Fort Erie was taken by the Americans, and on the 25th a battle was fought at Lundy's Lane. In August, Fort Erie was besieged by the British, who were compelled to retire. Scott, Wool, Brown, Miller and other American commanders showed remarkable skill and bravery in these battles; but many noble lives were lost and little gained in compensation."

History.

James Riker, Jr. in his Annals of Newtown gives:-

[1]"Joost (Caspar) Casperse Springsteen[2], with his brother Johannes[2], and their widowed mother, Geesie Jans, arrived at New Amsterdam, in 1652, from Groningen, and in 1660 they joined in the settlement of Bushwick. From these have all the Springsteens of this country descended. Joost married, on June 10th, 1663, Catharine, daughter of Abraham Lothie, and widow of Peter Praa. He afterwards married a second wife, Magdalena Jansen, and was living in 1687. His son Caspar[3], married Maria, daughter of Derick Storm, and having lived awhile in Westchester, came to Newtown, in 1700, where he died May 21st, 1729, leaving issue, Joost[4], Derick[4], who settled in Kent county, on the Delaware, Abraham[4], David[4], and Gertrude[4] the wife of William Miller. Joost[4] was the father of Jacobus[5] Springsteen, who gave the site for the White Pot schoolhouse. David[4] served as a deacon, and "kerkmeister" of the Dutch church, and died Oct. 14th, 1763, leaving, among other children, a son David[5], born Sept. 1st. 1725, who inherited the paternal estate at Hempstead Swamp, (now occupied by Richard Spragg, Jun.) and married Barbara Blom of the Wallabout. He died May 29th, 1803. His only son, David[6], fell heir to a new house, erected by his father, and his son, Michael S. Springsteen[7], now occupies the same."
